

A finite-dimensional reduction of dissipative dynamical systems

Dalibor Pražák

Faculty of Mathematics and Physics, Charles University, Prague

We show that under natural regularity assumptions, an abstract nonlinear parabolic evolution problem has a finite-dimensional attractor. Moreover, the long-time dynamics can be recast as a system of ODEs with exponentially decaying delay.

As an application, we consider a class of non-Newtonian fluids with dynamic boundary conditions.